French Thinking About Animals

Louisa Mackenzie and Stephanie Posthumus (McGill) have just signed a contract with Michigan State University Press as co-editors of a collection of essays, “French Thinking About Animals.”

"Animal Studies” is flourishing in Anglophone and Francophone contexts, with often different philosophical and ethical engagements. This edited volume brings together scholars working in France, Belgium, the USA, and Canada, in a spirit of dialogue, asking them to reflect specifically on how Anglophone and Francophone approaches to animals can inform and enrich each other. All chapters will be translated into English in order to present the depth of the French "question animale" to an English readership. Contributors include Vinciane Despret, Anne Simon, Dominique Lestel, Peter Sahlins and Carla Freccero.

Related Links:
Catalogue Description

People Involved:  Louisa Mackenzie
Research Status: Forthcoming
Research Type:  Publications  Books
Related Fields:  Animal Studies  Culture  French  Literature

Department of French & Italian Studies
University of Washington
c-254 Padelford Hall